

Upcoming NHSN Talks

Talks are free and all are welcome. They will be held in on Monday evenings in the Curtis Auditorium, Herschel Building, Newcastle University. Doors open at 6pm.

31 October

1829 Talk – Conservation and Evolutionary History of the Galapagos Giant Tortoise, with Rachel Gray, Newcastle University

NHSN Talk – Mammal Ecology: Micro to Macro, Local to Global, with Philip Stevens, Durham University

7 November

1829 Talk – Conserving the Crocodiles of Belize, with Ellie Coleman, NHSN

NHSN Talk – Life in Antarctica: Two Years in the Great White South with Tony Keville, formally of the British Antarctic Survey

14 November

1829 Talk – Integrating Trees into Farmland in Northumberland, with Eleanor Moore, Newcastle University

NHSN Talk – Urban Buzzing - The Grass is Always Greener in the Other Park, with Rinke Vinkenoog, Northumbria University

The Impact of Honeybees on Wild Pollinators, with Federica Paradiso, Northumbria University

21 November

1829 Talk – Trade-offs Between Coral Traits, with Liam Lachs, Newcastle University.

NHSN Talk – Chips with Everything - The Making of a Nature Reserve, with Peter Matthewson, local naturalist

28 November

1829 Talk – Pearl Mussels in Northumberland, with Ben Strachen, Environment Agency

NHSN Talk – What Makes Ferns Special? With Mary Gibby, Royal Botanic Garden Edinburgh

05 December

1829 Talk – Effects of Cattle Grazing on Ancient Semi-natural Wood Pasture at Kielder Forest, with Lisa Gill, Newcastle University

NHSN Talk – Return of the Otter, with Vivien Kent, North East Otter Network

Find out more by using the QR code

